The passport application forms are not a security document. Until 1992, all travel agents were free to print passport application forms. However, following the decision, in July 1992, to discontinue the practice of recognising travel agents the printing of passport application forms came to be centralised at one source and is arranged by the Government.

Print orders for application forms have been placed in the past with Government of India Press. However, inability of the GOI Press to conform to prescribed delivery schedules and the fact that their charge was higher than that of private printers, led Government to permit private printers including DAVP empanelled printers, to bid for, and undertake, printing of forms.
